HAIL, THE IGCC!

The Interim Guinea Current Commission was born on 22 September 2006. The occasion was the First Meeting of the Ministers responsible for the Guinea Current Large Marine Ecosystem (GCLME) Project (Abuja Nigeria, 21-22 September 2006)

It started on an auspicious note. The Ministers and development partners led by the Director General of UNIDO were received at the Presidential Villa in the morning of 21 September by the President of the Federal Republic of Nigeria, Chief Olusegun Obasanjo. The Nigerian President congratulated them for agreeing in principle to the establishment of a technical Guinea Current Commission (GCC) that will provide technical backstopping to the implementation of the provisions of International Instruments/Protocols in the areas of marine environmental and living resources management in their sector of the globe. The President saw the Guinea Current Commission as complementary to the existing political and economic union known as the Gulf of Guinea Commission comprising 8 of the 16 GCLME countries and hinted at the possibility of expanding the membership of the Gulf of Guinea Commission to the 16 countries of the Guinea Current Large Marine Ecosystem in order to align it with the ecosystem approach.

The President then sent the Secretary to the Federal Government, Chief Ufot Ekaette, to read his speech at the opening ceremony and to declare the meeting open.

Thereafter, the Ministers listened to UNIDO's evaluation of the progress in project implementation. In their individual statements, the Ministers applauded the achievements of the project towards agreed goals and targets and stressed the necessity to consolidate present and future achievements through an institutional arrangement that will provide a viable mechanism for the promotion of regional consultations and joint actions in marine environmental and living resources management.

It was in this positive atmosphere that the Draft Abuja Declaration seeking to create the Interim Guinea Current Commission (IGCC) was introduced. Due to prior consultations, the debate was brief but uplifting. The Abuja Declaration was unanimously adopted. And the IGCC was born! The newly created Executive Secretariat was exhorted to work assiduously towards a permanent status by 2009.

In this special edition, we bring you the "sights and sounds" of the meeting including the signing ceremony as well as scenes from the preceding 3rd Meeting of the Regional Steering Committee. We also publish in its integrity the Abuja Declaration.

As we laud this achievement, we must remind ourselves of the challenges ahead as the IGCC makes its transition to a permanent Guinea Current Commission (GCC). If the will and enthusiasm that underscored the Abuja Meeting is any indicator, the GCC can be said to be at our finger tips. Welcome IGCC!

- Conscious of the fundamental importance of the health of the Guinea Current Large Marine Ecosystem, including its coastal areas and contiguous drainage basins to the well being of the coastal populations, the economies and food security of the coastal states and the socio-cultural life of the Guinea Current Region;
- Noting the deteriorating state of the coastal and marine environment in the GCLME Sub-Region caused by severe depletion of shared resources and the ensuing loss of biodiversity, pollution from land and sea-based activities, the physical destruction of sensitive habitats including the effects of coastal erosion, etc. ;
- Aware of the direct correlation between ecological degradation and escalating poverty, galloping food insecurity and deteriorating health of our coastal populations;
- Noting the trans-boundary nature of the environmental and resource management issues/ problems and reaffirming our commitment to resolving the challenges arising from the identified issues/problems at both national and sub-regional levels, based on the Large Marine Ecosystem Approach which seeks to create an ecosystem-wide assessment and management framework for the sustainable use of living and non-living resources;
- Recognizing the imperative of achieving sustainable development through, inter alia:
 - o Integration of environmental concerns in planning, accounting and budgeting processes;
 - o Capacity building, accentuated stakeholders' participation, public awareness and outreach campaigns;

 - o Development of environmental information management and decision support systems and the promotion of information and data exchange;
- Further recognizing the need to sustain these activities through an institutionalized permanent regional body that incorporates all key actors;
- Cognisant that a Permanent Regional Commission is an appropriate approach to ensure sustainability and effective implementation of the Abidjan Convention (1981) and the Coastal and Marine Environment component of the New Partnership for African Development (NEPAD) Environmental Action Plan, as well as achieving internationally agreed goals and targets for the protection of coastal and marine environment including those associated with the Global Programme of Action on Land Based Activities (GPA), Millennium Development Goals and World Summit on Sustainable Development (WSSD) (Johannesburg Plan of Implementation);
- Fully conscious that negotiations for a regional Commission will require considerable time and recalling that the provisions of paragraph 37 of the approved Guinea Current LME Project Document calls for the immediate creation of an Interim
